i must be going for broke, cause i already broke the bank. and the change in my pocket, is strictly for the gas tank. for tonight we ride, with cheap beer in our hands showing everyone exactly where we stand.

united like brothers, and we probably should have been. with the world at our backs, we're ready to begin. another page, left to unfold, another journey, left to untold we're stomping the ground we walk trying to break the mold.

remember our name, we sing so loud, remember our name, we sing so proud i'm just trying to find a way for me to escape my everyday.

you remind me, of how it used to be, in my memory, you remind me things are changing oh so rapidly.

I feel so insecure about this road ahead of me, can i forget, have you already forgotten me.
