Of all the million words that I could write you,
They'll never fit the feeling in my head.

Intoxicating is how I describe you,
On paper, where it's plain for all to see,
Imaginary words I hope to reach you,
A stupid valentine for you to read.

But here you stand in front of me,
Reach out to touch me, can you see - my heart?

Heaven only knows how I could say this,
The suffocating spell you put on me,
I drink a drink of you, it leaves me senseless,

You drown me in your smile, I cannot breathe.

You're not another love ideal,
You're real, I see you, I can feel - your heart.

Never thought I'd sing you this in person,
Never thought you'd hear the things I write,
Imagine if these words I say inspire you,
To do the things I think of late at night.

But here you stand in front of me,
Reach out to touch me can you see - my heart?
