One night a dolphin crossed the ocean
Wandered near the English shore
Came upon another dolphin
Random meeting, nothing more
But fate had fashioned an encounter
Like the moon can move the waves
So here begins their tale of wonder
Paradise has found it's way

No creatures could be partnered better
Two bodies moving now as one
They frolicked in the ocean's splendor
Laughing 'til the eve was done
And those who ventured near their waters
Could sense a joy so true, so right
And if two creatures could speak tenderly
You could hear their call at night

Strange seas may hold our hearts' desire
Don't fear what comes with time
Tides turn taking our spirits higher
So live bold, don't let go

One day the dolphins came to surface
Saw the sun, the clouds roll by
They felt a sadness overcome them
Of their imminent goodbye
The sun had shown them both a vision
Not of the sea but of the sky
And as two creatures gazed toward heaven
They found that they would never fly

Strange seas may hold our hearts' desire
Don't fear what comes with time
Tides turn taking our spirits higher
So live bold, don't let go

And so the morning came and found them
The light betrayed what was no more
And so with one last gaze to bind them
They swam away to other shores
But the sun will still remind them

The ocean cannot hold their dreams
So now two creatures' hearts are broken
Their cry now heard in every sea

Now two creatures' hearts are broken
Their cry still heard in every sea

Strange seas may hold our hearts' desire
Don't fear what comes with time
Tides turn taking our spirits higher
So live bold, don't let go

And so the morning came and found them
The light betrayed what was no more
And so with one last gaze to bind them
They swam away to other shores
But the sun will still remind them
The ocean cannot hold their dreams
So now two creatures' hearts are broken
Their cry now heard in every sea

Now two creatures' hearts are broken
Their cry still heard in every sea
