The deigo flower has blossomed, and it has called the wind, and the storm has arrived.

The deigo flowers are in full bloom, and they have called the wind, and the storm has come.

The repetition of sadness, like the waves that cross the islands.

I met you in the Uji forest.

In the Uji forest I bid farewell to Chiyo.

Island Song, ride the wind, with the birds, cross the sea.

Island song, ride the wind, carry my tears with you.

The deigo blossoms have fallen, soft ocean waves tremble.

Fleeting joy, like flowers carried by the waves.

To my friend who sang in the Uji forest.

Beneath the the Uji, bid farewell to Yachiyo.

Island song, ride the wind, with the birds, cross the sea.

Island song, ride the wind, carry my love with you.

To the sea, to the universe, to God, to life, carry on this eternal dusk wind.

Island Song, ride the wind, with the birds, cross the sea.

Island song, ride the wind, carry my love with you.
