maybe i should take your advice and never look twice ive had my share of stories more grotesque than my insecurities ive sold myself short learned to forget your name so i wouldnt get hurt but it costs more than its worth instead of head down without a comeback i keep my head up and i push my shoulders back knowing im only as strong as my weakest excuse i run to you but moments like this they never last the questions im afraid to ask left my newfound confidence to collapse a secret i have found better to hold in then to let out i saw you searching for a body count after the storm passed over caution caution
this is where i draw the line this is where you stand beside the ones who lied and the ones who tried to rely on giving in lets no kid ourselves lifes as short as the time we waste lost laughing in our coffins scared of sounding fake scared back luck might conquer fate so we turn to bridges that weve burnt but its too late this was never a dream and it never will be i swear this never came so easily to me is it so hard to just say it i give up i give in so hold on to what you never had holding on by the blindfolds we hide behind we are all just digging ourselves separate holes but you left one open
