When this space between us grows
Like flowers in the spring
And when the night falls down it ascends over me

Heres to being young and stupid and full of life

And when I close my eyes I see your face
Imprinted in the clouds
And suddenly, I'm filled with questions
That won't ever be answered

And this is how the sky came crashing
For the past eight months
And I'm still counting

Some thing is grabbing me
And taking me under
These ocean waves are restless
And I can't feed their hunger

So let me drown here all alone
Just let this be and just let me be

And I just can't resist the things you've kept from me
I have myself and no one else

And suddenly I'm filled with the realization
That all this meant nothing at all
