call me a hero
call me a thief
call me the names that you think do fit to me don't care if you're acting unfair as long as your images of me give you reason to be there you want to know how it feels to be like me you want to understand why the truth is never ever big enough so here come another lie

I'm a soulman and I don't wanna know why I'm a lonley sailor sailing the sky just like a preacher who lost his belief I am a love addicted looking for relief there ain't a place that I do belong to somehow everything that I do turns out to be wrong sometimes it just seems like I am a nowhere man in his little tiny nowhere land so I close my eyes and let my thoughts get up high while thousands of angels call my name well am I just dreaming or am I driving insane

I'm a soulman...

we never think of the darkness while we face the light we don't believe in destiny when everything works out right but somehow we have to face somewhere that life isn't funny and love isn't fair

I'm a soulman...
