I thought I should let you know
I've been walking the streets again
Without any place to go
All tangled up in my head

And I thought that I'd come to the end of the struggle
But I see that it may never end
Please take my hand my friend

I thought I could let this go
Walk on and not return
But maybe that is just not how life goes
When the lesson is hard to learn

And I thought that I'd come to the end of the struggle
But I see that it may never end
So walk with me my friend

All tangled up in my head
