In your head the voices spread disarray
Heed their call and you will fall in a day
Turn your eyes to the skies

See the swan lift it's wings
And fly back home
To it's haven of love
Why does man lose his way
When reaching another road
And venture deep into the void

So you graze on lush pastures green

Hoping that you ruminate unseen
With misty eyes you swallow the lies

See the swan...

Search in vain for joy or a new beginning
In the battle where neither side is the winning

Turn your eyes to the skies

See the swan...
