You could walk away without a loss
Chances are as chances go
That you won't need me anymore
And measure in your step your vanity
But I know you better than that
You're not so different

I could walk away with no regrets
Where the palest shadows move
The ghosts will roam this room
And linger at the place where we first met
There's no place for me to run
Underneath this sun

While I remain in memory
While I remain in memory
Remember
Remember
Remember me

You could start again without a pause
What's the point in looking back
When there's no turning back
But in your stillest voice you sound assured
Count the heart that settles fast
The iron days are past

While I remain in memory
While I remain in memory
Remember
Remember
Remember me

The place you want
The place you love
The place you own
The place you call your home
Then face the fact
That facing up
Is better than backing down again alone...

While I remain in memory

While I remain in memory
Remember
Remember
Remember
Remember
Remember
Remember
Remember me
