Even as I search myself for a shred of dignity
I ask myself this simple question, Am I fit for this world?
If I dig deep and find the courage and heart, will it matter
Will the extra effort really go the extra mile?

Is my life worth this struggle?
My reflection is growing thinner
I can't see through these lies
I'm slipping through the cracks

When the sun turns into shadows and the light begins
to fade
I swear I'll light the way x2

As the days wage on my struggles are few and far between
Mentally and physically I am tough to the very bone Each wound, each gash have now become scars of a broken past
Your plot to bring me down is coming to it's end

You can't hurt me anymore
I can see right through you
Your deceptions are becoming weaker
My confidence is growing bigger

I am unstoppable!
Your words are powerless!

When the sun turns into shadows and the light begins
to fade
I swear I'll light the way x2

I can feel upon me
These judgmental eyes
Piercing my soul
Clawing at my skin
You are beneath me
And I am better
I am tough through and through

I promise the world I will defeat you
