English Translation:

Looking at the stars in the sky sparkling, man's dreams are probably like them Should the opportunity comes to own them, what would be the point without anyone appreciating The destination, between hope and the finish line, however great the goal may be it's no more important than Having someone to make it through to that goal with

Who will smile for me when reaching the finish line?
Who will be sharing the joy then?
On days of failures who will be the one saying that it's alright, that there have been worse days

That which is coming but not knowing when, why be afraid (of it) when a friend's around New day may break with numerous obstacles, put the arms around one another, readying to face them Because at times things don't go as dreamt, I know I'll still have a friend there as before
For better or worse, a friend's still a friend, unchanging Dreams still get old, goals might have changed, but friends never get old

afraid (of it) when a friend's around
New day may break with numerous obstacles, put the
arms around one another, readying to face them
Because at times things don't go as dreamt, I know I'll
still have a friend there as before
Dreams still get old, goals might have changed, but
friends never get old
