The Last Day

The rain is pouring down as he walks down the path
To be punished for his sins, to get a rope around his neck

The gallow stood there smiling as the crowd were gathered

A sudden silence swept over the crowd as he was led to meet his fate

He knows this breath could be his last one
And he is sure that this is his last day
His last day

No more late and sinful nights, that belongs, to his past He can't change what he has done, but he can beg for forgiveness

The crowd was shouting in excitement, they wait for him to hang

He could feel the air below and his darkness was complete

He knows this breath could be his last one
And he is sure that this is his last day
His last day

He knows this breath could be his last one
And he is sure that this is his last day
His last day
