It's gotten cold in here,
But a solemn warmth draws near
And with a gentle touch,
All these burdens and such fears are wiped clear

Who says you are to stay?
How's this the easier way?
It's far from giving up,
Cowards never say "enough is enough"

And then I'm lifted up,
Out of the crimson towel
The bath begins to drain
And from the floor he prays away all my pain

Who says that God exists?
We can't see icons or myths, but
I believe in you,
Do you believe in me too?
Gabrielle

All the things you can't control
Should never destroy your love or hopes
I found a place, I found a place,
I found a place where we belong

Never did I think that I'd believe they took away his crown
Never did I ever think I'd find all of the things I've found
It's hard to keep on living where your heart is but I knew you'd help
All I've ever wanted was to be happy and make you proud
