And the leaves of autumn will remain unchanged
Falling though October skies that we brought again
In time

On winds that hint of winter
Blowing through your life you will find no shelter
Or is it answers tonight?

Castles made of sand are built against the rain
And their fragile walls will never claim you
Hear the distant thunder calling out your name
Crashing like the waves on New Dream Islands

And you search for comfort in a land so fair
Reachin' for those memories that are always there
For you

You can wear your sorrow like a veil of tears
But it's just illusion that you hold so dear

Castles made of sand are built against the rain
And their fragile walls will never save you
Hear the distant thunder calling out your name
Crashing like the waves on New Dream Islands

And the leaves of autumn will remain unchanged.
