I'm calling out to the big man,
Searching for a better plan,
Cause I don't wanna walk alone no more.
I can shrug my shoulders, I can grin my teeth,
But this trouble's more than skin deep.
It's taking everything I've ever loved.

No more of sleeping with the lights on, with the lights on.
Cause I've done enough of that.

I'm swimming in the deep end,
Too far away from the edge.
Is there anybody out there?
That can pull me back again.
I tried to learn my lessons
But like a fool, I always missed them
And here we go again
Swimming in the deep end.

Oh oh...

The darkness comes like a hurricane
Embrace the feel, I embrace the pain
And let the tidal wave wash over me.
I've grown immune to the shivers, immune to the shakes.
And somehow this weak heart still aches for,
You to come and save me from myself.

And no more of sleeping with the lights on, with the lights on.
Cause I've done enough of that.

I'm swimming in the deep end,
Too far away from the edge.
Is there anybody out there?
That can pull me back again.
I tried to learn my lessons
But like a fool, I always missed them
So here we go again
So here we go again

Swimming in the deep end.
