"I Wish There Were 5 Seasons"

Never thought winter could feel so warm
But the blue in your eyes it somehow heats the air
I always get sentimental at this time of year
But this is one resolution that I will never break

If you heard me dying there on the phone
Would you reach through the lines
And tell me you'd meet me there?

'Cause I know now
That nothing is easy
And I won't make promises
That I can't keep
Just promise the same thing to me

Springtime has never appeared so dull
The sun and the breeze are jealous of our smiles
The calendar pages are scattered all over the floor
Trodden with footprints so I can't read the date

If you heard me dying there on the phone
Would you reach through the lines
And tell me you'd meet me there?

'Cause I know now
That nothing comes easy
And I won't make promises
That I can't keep
Just promise the same thing to me

If you heard me dying there on the phone
Would you reach through the lines
And tell me you'd meet me there?

Cause I know now that nothing is easier
I won't make promises that I can't keep Just promise that you will smile whenever you feel like it and I will always remember your ways
I'll fight for one last day
