When my lips get kissed it's just from force of habit
For a long long time I've known what's going on His pretending hasn't fooled me for a minute
And it's duty not desire that brings him home.

My heart is a foot stool he uses
And he only takes advantage of my love
The woman in me he abuses
'Cause it's duty not desire that brings him home.

Oh, does he think I'm such a fool that I don't notice
The changes that have taken a place in him
Where once there was passion now there's coldness
And the love once burning bright now burns so dim.

My heart is a foot stool he uses
And he only takes advantage of my love
The woman in me he abuses
'Cause it's duty not desire that brings him home.

Yes, it's duty not desire that brings him home...
