"Song of The Comrade"

To every sailor the gods have given a comrade
While one sleeps the other keeps watch on the bridge
When one doubts the other gives him his faith
When one falls the other discovers the oasis of ice for both of them

When my comrade loses faith I laugh confidently
When my comrade sleeps I keep watch for him
When my comrade falls I fight on for the both of us Because to every sailor the gods have given a comrade
Hey!

If you loose heart, I'll laugh joyfully
And if you sleep, I'll keep watch for you
And if you fall, I'll fight on for the both of us Because to every warrior the gods have given a comrade
Hey!

If you fall I will discover the oasis of ice for both of us Hey!

Hey!
