[Verse One] I'm on my grizzly no hesitation I put my music out instead of waitin' Everything that you rap about is speculation You talk about doin' shows but never toured the nation My reputation wasn't build by the press So my records still sell even when I get dissed I build my rep through hard work I waited till my name got large first For what I did to a 16 bar verse Then I bought a crib, not a car first I do more before 10:00 am then a lot of dudes do their entire careers The path of my life is clear Bully bitch rappers and inspire my peers I'm not a slave to the stage or the radio I'm not a follower of the fashion or the trends My only challenge is to make good records And be seen as a musician when this ends You wanna turn rap into high school You wanna gossip about what I do Whatever it takes to inspire you I wish I had something to gain from fighting you Don't make me laugh [Verse Two] It's quite ironic what I see these days You got an oversize hat but you workin' with a pea brain Cats that never seen a turntable Got the nerve to make a song and call it "Go DJ" When you stop writin' battle raps People criticize you and say it ain't raw We say we want peace But we voted for a president that only know war People say producers got soul cause they sample a bunch of soul records But when you talk from the heart they don't say you got soul They say you gettin' too emo and that they don't get it I guess only Marvin Gaye can ask questions The rest of us can only talk about rims spinnin' As long as we worship material things instead of God The devil keeps grinnin'
