I saw you standing there with someone new
It doesn't matter, so they say
I've been hiding from the sun for seven days
Who could afford you, anyway?

I can't stand the cold that you left behind
When you turned away to the other side

It's seems our love went out
And it won't come back the more I shout

... it's been so alone without you here, like a bird
Without the sun...

My man is coming down the stairs
With a bronze smile on his sunburned face
He says: "it's time to make a choice son,
But do not leave a fucking trace"

I see your scratches in the door

And they say: try, c'mon try!
Those burning matches on the floor
Whisper: say goodbye!

I woke up at the sea shore
Is that blood dripping from my mouth?
She got me mocking at the cockbirds
With roaring waters to the south

I can't stand the cold
That you left behind
When you turned away
To the other side
I saw them standing
I saw them standing there
I saw them standing
They're fucking everywhere...

I can't stand the cold that you left behind
When you turned away to the other side
