Tango

by Patty Larkin

Bells are ringing, sirens going off

It's a holiday season, get out your greeting card

Well now it's

Kind of like a birthday

kind of like a freeway

Kind of like violins

Kind of like a Tango

Me and you again

Bits of metal, heart of gold, will of steel

Pulled to the magnet and pounded out into a wheel,

Well now it's

Kind of like a moving train

Kind of like a haunting refrain

That you hear on the wind

Kind of like a Tango

Me and you again

Don't change outfits and don't bother pressing your clothes

Well, I'm coming to see you and I want to see you up close

And now it's

Kind of like romance

Kind of like tight pants

Kind of like Original Sin

Kind of like a Tango

Me and you again

All these bleak Decembers

All these ice encounters

All that I remember

Is all the love in my life, all the love in my life

Bells are ringing, sirens going off

it's a holiday season, get out your greeting cards

Well now it's

Kind of like champagne

Kind of like Coltrane

With the volume turned up to ten
Kind of like a tango
Me and you again

It's kind of like ballet legs
Just like Lambada craze
Dancing 'till dawn in the den
Kind of like a Tango
Me and you again
ahh, yeah....
