Even though it still hurts from the words that you threw at me There's no pleasure at all from watching you fall to your knees Cause the tables have turned and I'm finally learning to live, forgive and let go There's no sweet revenge at loves angry end and we all need to know

When the last curtain falls with the final goodbye
And the bitter cold darkness of night floods the days of our lives
With the silence so loud we can't feel at all There's no reason or cause to cheer or applause
when the last curtain falls

Well the irony is your wearing the look I once wore And in truth I've longed for this moment to settle the score But it's not all that clear hearing you echo the thoughts of my soul the justice of time is really not mine and I want you to know

with the final goodbye
With the silence so loud
we can't feel at all
to cheer or applause

to cheer or applause
