"Crab Apple Trees"

Rain on my windowpane
Cuppa soup and noodles, changing my perspective
I wait for the sun
Everlasting glow of liquid sunshine on the ground

They say that April showers
Are meant to bring May flowers
But they always wilt and blow away
Into another season
Another reason to say
Not Today

The storm has come and gone
Stirred things up, cast me aside, I have come undone
I wait for sun
Everlasting glow of liquid sunshine on the ground

The dawn is near
One thing is clear
It's brighter there
It's brighter there
The worst has passed
The worst is over

They say that April showers
Are meant to bring May flowers
But they always wilt and blow away
Into another season
Another reason to say
Maybe today
