

Brian Reilly "The Ross Song"

Visit "The Ross Song" on MotoLyrics.com

I know it is cliché when I say that you're looking down on us
But I never believed in heaven 'til I knew that's where you are
I'm no longer afraid of death, knowing that I'll meet you when it comes
But I'll live and live until it does

We'll never stop loving you
We'll never stop thinking of you We'll never stop wearing your clothes, writing you songs
And living the path that you put us on

I know you're losing sleep, at times delusional
When you wake and think he's there
But just 'cause it's not physical Don't mean his presence doesn't fill our air

And it's undoubtable, and impossible
For us to ever stop loving you
To ever stop thinking of you
To ever stop wearing your clothes, writing you songs
And living the path that you put us on

Visit Brian Reilly page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.