

Alishia May

"Take Me To The River"

Visit "Take Me To The River" on MotoLyrics.com

Take me to the river where I belong
Look at your hands, you are strong.
The trees begin to call your name.
The cycle of your life begins again.
The dust of fallen leaves on the ground.
My head starts to spin around.

Stop! Wait! Faster! Don't go!
Watch out for the acid of new fallen snow.
In this wilderness we awaken now.
You've just won, take a bow.
You've been loved, loathed, been hated.
You've been cursed, by the only one.

How do you expect me to know when to fall?
When I can't even find you at all.
I've been walking this road for years.
I've been walking through this green forest.
Do you realize what this means?
You can't try to make me believe.

Stop! Wait! Faster! Don't go!
Watch out for the acid of new fallen snow.
In this wilderness we awaken now.
You've just won, take a bow.
You've been loved, loathed, been hated.
You've been cursed, by the only one.

Don't try to make me believe anything you say.
You've left this too long too my dismay.
So I leave you, with it as simple as this.
Stay back in the shadows to keep your bliss.

Stop! Wait! Faster! Don't go!
Watch out for the acid of new fallen snow.
In this wilderness we awaken now.
You've just won, take a bow.
You've been loved, loathed, been hated.
You've been cursed, by the only one.
(You've been cursed, by the only one.)

