Throw the sheets off, start your day
Lean over and gently say
If you want you can shower with me
Brush your teeth, blow dry your hair
Check yourself out in the mirror
Ask me how you look, you look pretty

The morning wakes you up
With a shot of coffee and
The nighttime lays you down
With a quaint sip of tea

Off to work, you come home late
I'll prepare your dinner plate
Just sit down and tell me about your day
Boss was crude, had attitude
Told me to stay calm and cool
I pulled him to the side and I explained

The morning wakes you up
With a shot of coffee and
The nighttime lays you down
With a quaint sip of tea

After a long day, a sweet smell fills the kitchen
It calms you down
Patiently waiting to fill your cup, you slowly sip
It hits your tongue

The morning wakes you up
With a shot of coffee and
The nighttime lays you down
With a quaint sip of tea
