

Bury Me Deep "Cobalt Blue Light"

Daylight is nearly down
And the night will come
I close my eyes
And I fall in deep sleep
Moonlight is taken my room
Reflected from a cold white neck
A rough outline, a woman beneath my feet

She's still there

A cobalt blue light shines from her
Silence and faith comes over me
My head on her back
My arm on her shoulder
I hear her still breathe

It seems to be reality

And I'm waiting
I'm waiting for the sign

Daylight with a smell of jasmine
She will be back
She'll be there for the day
She'll give me faith
She'll be there to survive the day
Let me see her face

Let me see her sign

And I'm waiting
I'm waiting for the night

A cobalt blue light
