Clocks don't rock

Your fridge looks empty, the clock won't rock
Waiting for your money, the clock won't rock
Tortured by toothache, cueing at the toilet
Your feet are freezing, clock will ignore it

Talking to your teacher, the clock won't rock
Meet your boss for dinner, the clock won't rock
Unemployment grabs you, on the top
When no one is with you, clock will stop

But when honey drops some love into the pool of life
And sun starts pouring in your darkest mind
When heat melts sadness and ice of pain
And time prepares to rush and hurry

It's time for curry! 2x

On a rainy holiday, the clock won't rock
Jump-shit on TV, the clock won't rock
Listen to reggae music, the heat won't drop
Your football team is losin', clock will stop

When you put your arms around me, the clock will rock
If your smell surrounds me, the clock will rock
No time is left for taking the best
When life is over, time has been left

But when honey drops some love into the pool of life
And the sun starts pouring in your darkest mind
When heat melts sadness and ice of pain
And time prepares to rush and hurry

It's time for curry! 2x

Interlude

But when honey dropped some love into the pool of life
And sun started pouring in your darkest mind
When heat melted sadness and ice of pain
And time healed all wounds... you've seen

It's time for sushi!
It's time for sushi!

It's time for curry!
It's time for curry!
