"Watercolor"

Grey to the bone
Silvery landscapes
Diluted tone
In liquid cry
Flowing
From the sky

Silhouettes
In the falling tears
Washing the colors away

Delicate hues
On the sheet of my pathway
Shifting to the blues
In the passing of the day
Slowly
Fade away

Wondering why
Ash surrounds me
But your smile is alive in the frame of my heart

I will paint away
The brushes are calling for me
To color the gray

And the greens
Reds
And purples will cover the scenes
And brighten this rainiest day

I will paint away
And try to remind you
