I know she waits in silence, in the corner of her room
She sends out a life line, to the moon, and she smiles
Her dangerous smile

She was the one who never, ever asked for much Got all the love she needed, from a strangers touch, when she smiled
Her dangerous smile

And the night goes on forever when you, you feel so all alone
With no familiar strangers to remind you of your home
The days can pass so quickly when the, the night is not your friend
And she's wondering, where it will end, ohh ohh

Where are all the answers, there's questions everywhere
And she's come to believe, that nothing's really fair, when she smiles
Her dangerous smile

What lies ahead, hanging by a thread she knows, things always change
What lies ahead, she'll hide a while behind, her dangerous smile

Now she's a silhouette, by the window sill
But nothing feels the same, it never will, so she'll smile
A dangerous smile

And the night goes on forever when you, you feel so all
alone
With no familiar strangers to remind you of your home
The days can pass so quickly, when the, the night is not
your friend
And she's wondering, where it will end

And now she waits in silence, in the corner of her room And she sends out a life line, right to the moon, when she smiles
Her dangerous smile

Ohh no she smiles, her dangerous smile Ohh come on baby, smile, a dangerous smile Come on baby, smile, that dangerous smile Ohh you know she always smiles, that dangerous, smile
Mmhm smile, smile, your dangerous smile
