(The wind is calling)

Hush, the wind is asking you to listen
And still you go on in your way
When you think that time has chosen you
As one of the precious few who, rule the sun more than the day
Then, there's nothing left to say

Hush, the wind is asking you to listen
As she brushes the hair from your eyes
And you listen to her silent song See through the right and wrong the, truth between the lies
And, it's really no surprise

The wind is calling, rising, falling, reminding you
Of how it used to be
The wind is calling, rising, falling, and trying to
Trying to set you free

But time makes us change
And we all become estranged, from the ones, that we used to be before
And we all learn to hate
But we just can't walk away, from the hopes, that a friendly face, is locked
Behind that door

And while the wind is begging you "Please listen
To the memories from the past"
And you wonder if, as time goes on Those who have come and gone will, ever really last Ohh cause time, goes by way too fast, as the moments quickly pass, fading in
To shadow's cast

The wind is calling, rising, falling, reminding you
Of how it used to be
The wind is calling, rising, falling, and trying to
Trying to set you free

The wind is calling, rising, falling, reminding you
Of how it used to be
The wind is calling, rising, falling, and trying to
Trying to set, you, free

(The wind is calling)
(The wind is calling)
Trying to set, you, free

(The wind is calling)
Trying to set, you, free
