Past street lights, empty cars, and highways signs
Trying to escape this feeling
We ran past street lights, empty cars, and highway
sings
Trying to escape this feeling

We swam at the beach at night in our underwear
We held our hands so tight in the dark water
And standing barefoot on the pier
You grabbed clothes
It started raining and you turned to me and ran

Past street lights, empty cars, and highways signs
Trying to escape this feeling
We ran past street lights, empty cars, and highway
sings
Trying to escape this feeling

And you sat next to me on the long ride home
The air conditioning against my wet clothes
Gave me goosebumps on my arms
You said that everything we wanted was away but not too far

We ran past street lights, empty cars, and highways signs
Trying to escape this feeling
We ran past street lights, empty cars, and highway
sings
Trying to escape this feeling

Past street lights
Past street lights
Past street lights
Past street lights
