Let the winter bury me in snow
To melt the loneliness I know
Out on the lawn
And mix it in with the mud.
Cause I remember things I've left behind
A pair of socks and my bike
That spent the winter sleeping inside
And you're still mad.

All I know is I want to be the one you call home.

Don't go blocking the sunshine
Don't go blocking the sunshine
Don't go blocking the sunshine
I can't change.

Have the summer help me sweat
Out all the things I don't want to have
Like the way I talk about my friends.
I can't bite my lip.

Cause I remember summers spent
With sprinklers on the wet cement,
Ripped up jeans, and silly dreams
Of always staying friends.

I'm still young and I want to lay out in the sun.

Don't go blocking the sunshine
Don't go blocking the sunshine
Don't go blocking the sunshine
I can't change.
