They bought a house in the city,
He's banking everything on her.
His ambition is fading,
She's severed all her friendships.
Does she love him?
Will she give him everything?
Does she love him? Does she love him?
They watch each other so closely,
They choose the dullest friends,
They just want to be special
To one another until the end.
Does she love him?
Will she give him everything?
Does she love him? Does she love him?
Passion...isn't everything
Passion...isn't everything.
He doesn't want to lose her,
She doesn't want to end the game
But the outcome is certain
And neither one of them is to blame...
You can't spend your life looking over your shoulder
In an effort to hold on to something,
If you let go and it stays
Then it's truly worth having.
Does she love him?
Will she give him everything?
Does she love him? Does she love him?
