The words got in the way, he's over-reacting, but nobody sees him to teach him the lesson His lips under a light, they look like they're swelling, but it's only natural, an allergic reaction Until he catches a glimpse of someone who sees him, the eyes are like lenses, they come up to his shoulder It's finally over

I'm gonna love again,
you gotta break me in,
I'm holding out too long,
you hear it in my songs,
you gotta break me in

He's leaning on his friends, avoiding an action
It's just like a movie that nobody's watching She grabs him by the wrist, says, "Logan, you're spinning."
It's funny you say that, 'cause no one else noticed He smiled and told her...

I'm gonna love again; you gotta break me in I'm holding out too long, but I'm not giving up
You gotta break me in, it won't happen overnight
'cause my heart's not making sense
So if I'm gonna love again, you gotta break me in

In the air is a hint of iron; I wonder if I'll ever feel that blood again
My chest is cold and lungs are tired
If anything could warm me it was discontent with less

I'm gonna love again; you gotta break me in
I'm holding out too long, but I'm not giving up
You gotta break me in, it won't happen overnight
'cause my heart's not making sense
So if I'm gonna love again, you gotta break me in
