Sitting all alone with my whisky on ice
I wonder why he's not with me tonight
If the rain be on tonight then I won't sleep
I'm haunted by this loneliness I keep

And it's too late to cry 'cause we left it all behind
Too late to cry 'cause there's nothing left defied
You won't get more than you're living for
And it's too late to cry tonight

It doesn't seem much point in us carrying on
We pretend to cry but the feelings are gone
I hear the death man has lost his mate
The silence that follows him tells me of our fate

And it's too late to cry 'cause we left it all behind
You won't get more than you're living for
And it's too late to cry tonight

The empty glass before me tells the story in my eyes
The dimness it has given me won't let me realize That love is more or less the state of mind we go through
With no guarantees what it holds me or you

And it's too late to cry 'cause we left it all behind
You won't get more than you're living for
And it's too late to cry tonight, and it's too late to cry tonight
Too late to cry tonight
