PLATO AND HIS RUINS

Welcome to this time of progressive aging
Where that old pure nature is always defiled
This sense of time - between Zeus and Chronos lies the parricide

Ruins of all nature - nothing more may exist
Ruins of all nature - corruption of ideas

Memoriesâ€¦ refuse
Memoriesâ€¦ reveal

Reminiscence - against all of our senses
A rope between sensible and intelligible?

Nothing can we build but everything is lost

The pilot of the universe let the helm go,
And retired to his place of view;
And then fate and innate desire
Reversed the motion of the world (PLATO, TIMAEUS)
