Who ever said love's easy
I wish I could remember who
Sometimes you only see me
For what you want
Instead of what I am
If love is just a pleasure
Something you turn off and on
Now if you think there's someone better
For what you need
If they have something I don't have

I'll wake you up tomorrow
I'll give back what I borrowed
But won't you take my sorrow
And pack it up throw it away
And remember the good times
Remember the good times
Remember the good times

How did we find each other
What made our love begin
Now how did we lose each other
When did it end
And will it be again
I used to love the mornin'
And we used to talk till dawn
But now we live like strangers
In a house and soon we'll both be gone

I'll wake you up tomorrow
I'll give back what I borrowed
But won't you take my sorrow
And pack it up throw it away
And remember the good times
Remember the good times
Remember the good times

Whoever said love's easy
It must have been a fairytale
But you can still come to see me
When you need somebody that cares

I'll wake you up tomorrow
I'll give back what I borrowed
But won't you take my sorrow
And pack it up throw it away
And remember the good times
Remember the good times
Remember the good times
