The text message you just sent me made me cry.
Tears are running down the cheeks you kissed,
when you ripped my heart out,
and told me you thought that you loved me,
and we stayed up all night long,
holding onto each other trying to keep tomorrow
from tearing us apart.

Wasn't it just last night that you said you loved me,
and that we should run away.
This is not a bitter breakup song,
I just want you to know that I'm not angry.
You'll be better off without me.

It was so hard to say those things to you,
with you telling me to shut up
through the tears you cried,
while I tried to change your mind,
about changing your mind about staying with me,
but you knew that I was lying.
Now I'm alone with my regret wishing I could take back everything I said.

Wasn't it just last night that you said you loved me,
and that we should run away.
This is not a bitter breakup song,
I just want you to know that I'm not angry.
You'll be better off without me.

I didn't mean to fall in love with you.
