Well

By Alev Lenz

Well, my smile won't tell bout the pain you've caused All the blood you've shed people won't come see me / won't bring flowers to my bed
If a car had hit me you would see
All the broken bones, all the open wounds and the doctor's concerned face
Well, but my smile won't tell 'bout the accidents and the cracks and dents
The light gets in

Well, we're flesh and bones
But to hearts and souls there's also sticks and stones
Pictures you see / the words you hear / the echos in your head
If a car had hit me you would see
But there's no broken bones, no open wounds / I'll just keep my unconcerned face
Well, but my smile won't tell 'bout the accidents and the cracks and dents
The light gets in

Well, my smile won't tell 'bout the pain I've held / The tears not shed People don't see me / I'll go silently mad

Please don't tell me 'bout anything happening
Control it / Control it / Control it

Well, my smile didn't tell bout the pain I held, my blood was shed people came to see me
There's no flowers on this concrete bed a car had hit me 'cause I let go here's my broken bones and open wounds
try and fix me now
