

Clepsydra

"Alone"

Visit "Alone" on MotoLyrics.com

Of their hearts the kindest is yours always beating lightly and steadily driven by rough and cold feelings the memory of long days gone learning to love and nights spent in the dark made blind by wrong romances taught you that walking in different lives you may not always turn, go away and never come back taught you that sooner or later you will find again all you left behind and going away will be even harder
and going away will be even harder you can't forget what you are no one's so strong to change you no one's so crazy to want to change you about the people that matter to you don't try to find a way to love them it should be natural, like recognizing your brother far away from home

And when you recognize him hug him with the whole world it will be all you'll feel like doing and when you'll let him be together with tears of pain there will be the certainty to exist you'll forget the misery deeply hidden in your heart all nasty ties bound to your past will fade away like frost at the sunrise of your morning sun and this will help you surviving your distress and going away will be even harder
and going away will be even harder

