Wide eyed, knee deep in surprise
Just below your thighs, the temperature drops 5 degrees
Your standby flight has just arrived

Tongue tied, bleeding from your eyes Even Christ Himself would cringe at the sight of your scars
While you're counting sheep, I'll count my lucky stars

You were the last good thing I ever saw
And I lost it all, I lost it all

Burned out on 2 hours of shut eye
Eyes glazed at the thought of the next 8 hours
Headwind, cold rain to wake me

You were the last good thing I ever saw
