It's a calm night, a lonely night
You restless at home
And you wander where's he tonight
As you drink wine alone

You brush your teeth and wash your face and lay down
You toss and turn and wait all night for sleep to come
Turn on the light and read about another life
The sun is high and the rest of the world is awake now

And you wander if he was mine

Will it be right, will he feel right

Oooh if he was mine, if he was mine
But he's not mine, no, he's not mine

So brush your teeth and wash your face and lay down
You toss and turn and wait all night for sleep to come
Turn on the light and read about another life
The sun is high and the rest of the world is awake now
