Too many promises you can't keep
Too many stories you have told
Did not have a single word of truth

How many out there have you fooled
How many lies have you told
To the ones who can't see your fake smiles

How can you expect that I will believe
What makes you think that I would trust you
What have you done to deserve my faith
Empty press won't help you now

When you can bring down the moon, and empty all the
Seas
Move the mountains a little, closer to me
When you can paint the sky in red, and wake up all the
Dead
When that time comes I will believe
I will believe in you

Your lies will follow you everywhere
Reminding you all your sins
Like a demon sitting under a shoulder

This time you won't get away
No tricks will save you today
Voices call your name
They're driving you insane

How can you expect that I will believe
What makes you think that I would trust you
What have you done to deserve my faith
Empty press won't help you now

When you can bring down the moon, and empty all the
Seas
Move the mountains a little, closer to me
When you can paint the sky in red, and wake up all the
Dead
When that time comes I will believe
I will believe in you

When you can bring down the moon, and empty all the
Seas
Move the mountains a little, closer to me
When you can paint the sky in red, and wake up all the
Dead
When that time comes I will believe
I will believe in you
