She sleeps in the rivers bed, drunk of her sadness
Her head had the dwelling of deepest torment, of Deepest lament
Caressing the water like ice, she shakes her head until
Her spirit finds the reason of her fright
The words you meant to tell will never be
Your dreaming of violence with secrets the ocean has
The key
The evil hand hangs on your ship

"We're so different, when I'm cold and silent
Your're setting a fire to dry your heart"
They're jumping and dancing and loving and kissing
All night long
They're dying and bleeding and hating and sighing
All night long

"I take back my trust in you,
I take back my trust in you"

She swims in the rivers bed, possessed by her feelings
The moon fades in the gloomy expanse that drifts her
Naked skin
Caressing the water like marsh, she journeys her hands
Until
Her body finds the reason of her thrill
The words you meant to tell will never be
You're diving in silence like a mermaid in the dreary
Sea
The evil hands inside of him

"We're so different, when I'm cold and silent
Your're setting a fire to dry your heart"
They're jumping and dancing and loving and kissing
All night long
They're dying and bleeding and hating and sighing
All night long

"I take back my trust in you,
I take back my trust in you"

She died in the rivers bed, drowned by her sorrow

The waves carried her body in shreds, her soul will Follow
An the words he meant to tell will never be He's diving with sadness in unknown, dark and Spellbound seas.
The fading moon will shine on him
