What colour is a heart ache
From love lost at sea?
What shade of memory never fades
But lingers to eternity?
How dark is the light of day
These sleepless eyes of mine survey?
Is a new Atlantic Blue
My heart is as cold as you.

How is one heard chosen
To never lay at peace?
How many moments remain
Is in a one sweet release?
And whose the stranger at my door
To haunt my dreams forevermore?
Is a new Atlantic Blue
My heart is as cold as you.

I lay awake in the morning
As the waves wash all the sand.
I hold my hurt at bay
I hold the lives of his children in my hands.

And whose plea would recieve no answer,
Whose cry is lost on the wind?
Whose the voice so familiar
Whispers my name as the night comes in?
And whose wish never fails to find
My vacant heart on Valentine?
Is a new Atlantic Blue
My heart is as cold,
My heart is as cold,
My heart is as cold, as you.
