Why was it so hard to tell me
"I've never cared, never wished to see
What you'll be like, what you need from me"
No more I wait for it.

I don't hear your voice,
No more I will say:
"Will you keep your word and stay?"
I am not afraid of darkness nor the pain
I know nothing but one I learned
You taught me to

Forget it, forget the childhood
Forget the days I spent on waiting for you
Grow stronger, ready to say aloud
- I am no longer your child!

Freedom, lack of boundaries
Your life was full of joy
Now I'm asking you: "Was it worth?"
Of missing my first step and causing all my tears
You were too far to hear my tiny cry
It was a "good bye"

Forget it, forget the childhood
Forget the days I spent on waiting for you
Grow stronger, ready to say aloud
- I am no longer your child!

I will always remember my mother
Who sacrificed her life to replace you, my father
Honor and grace - she had much more
It was her love which you were not worth of

Forget it, forget the childhood
Forget the days I spent on waiting for you
Grow stronger, ready to say aloud
- I am no longer your child!
