near the oceans edge, where i hang my head and watch a stone make it with the water i think of me and you, all i've put you through i know it's hard to make love to a stone it's turning out all wrong sink to the bottom of my heart to find what i feel it breaks me up to weigh you down, believe me camille i try to write you poems, everything seems wrong i walk this floor made of crumpled verses am i enough for you? i don't know what to do i drink, i dream, swan dive into sleep am i making this too deep?

it breaks me up to weigh you down, believe me camille
