she told me it was pretty, she was glad to make its acquaintance my siamese cat sat on her linoleum floor she gave me the opal for my crown, i couldn't believe it was tuesday everything dragged like the day before she brought me in to her little shop of hormones, i bought a t-shirt in a paper cup i drank all her sunburn, immigration don't take her back

strawberryvelvetfiftycentshoes she could dress like a saint if she wanted to shine like an emerald next to the moon she could wear anything, she could wear anything she's chic in jackie o glasses, she pray to rhinestone elvis she lay me down on the patio floor then we went down to the krispy kreme in the burnt october sienna it's all a working class clown on a tuesday night can afford she got sad , i took her to a movie, johnny depp and brando in my heart there's a valley and a shivering sun, i'm in love but i'm no don juan

she mix stripes and plaids when she just can't choose ninety delusions and ten percent truth

i shiver in the sun, 'cause she could be the one

god the girl can't sing but she's so in tune shine like an emerald next to the moon she could wear anything

she would paper-mache if she had the news ninety delusions and ten percent truth
